

Value of Clean Plays BY DE WOLF HOPPER.

Not long ago, some one jokingly said that my plays were like a certain brand of soap, ninety-nine and two-thirds per cent pure. Nothing that has ever been said of me or my work has pleased me as much as this tribute. I'm for the clean play, first, last and all the time, and what's more important, I know that the public is, too. The temporary prosperity that has come to certain managers who have this season presented plays which—oh, well, what's the use of naming them—every one knows that there are two or three salacious comedies now before the public, which have won a certain measure of financial success. That this success is one of the most ephemeral kind is as sure as death and taxes. No play that is not wholesome can have any real value, and without real value there can be no success.

"The day is past when the theater-going public will go to the theater just because it is open. It is no longer the 'show business,' but the 'show-me business.' The public insists upon knowing what it is going to pay its good money for. I hate to talk about myself, but I've had the most phenomenal success in a season of failures. I am perfectly sure there is a reason for it. People know that I've always given them perfectly clean entertainments. My motto is clean plays for clean people. So we are all happy—the public because it is getting clean, wholesome fun, and I because I'm able to give it to them.

"It's a remarkable thing how seldom the theater-going public as a whole goes wrong. Its verdict is nearly always the true one. All this talk about plays being over the heads of audiences is rot, pure and simple; good plays never fail, and bad plays nearly always come to grief, and that's about all there is to it. Certainly, the great amusement loving public is a fine, healthy, clean-minded public, and will have nothing to do with the vile, unclean plays. The small element which cares for that sort of thing gives such pieces a fictitious popularity which does not mislead anyone."

Mr. Grossmith on tour in "Mr. Preedy and the Countess," in accordance with the original scheme, who induced him to come decided that they did not care to invest at this time. Consequently, Miss Gilmour is at present recovering from a severe illness. This woman a few years ago was one of the queens of the vaudeville stage, earning $100 a night. She recently had to enter a charity hospital—a few nights ago she fell and hurt herself severely.

employer will be W. A. Brady, who has promised to teach him all he knows about the front of the house and to give him an insight into the theatrical business if he will work hard and try to learn. As a proven king of high finance, Mr. Brady believes he can learn all there is in box office management with little difficulty.

A number of vaudeville performers volunteered their services for the benefit for Lottie Gilmour, famed among theater goers as the Little Magnet.

"I expected to remain thirty weeks, and made preparations accordingly. It seems as if New York—as much of New York as I have seen before me, didn't like 'Mr. Preedy and the Countess.' I brought two plays with me,

CASH REGISTER FIRM BUILDS UNIQUE STREET

Down the central portion of the first floor of one of its enormous buildings the National Cash Register Company is constructing a model street with stores fixed up in up-to-date fashion, as laid out by this progressive company. The architecture is of one kind of a massive mission style, while the windows are arranged artistically and appropriate to the kind of store represented. Real goods are shown in the windows and are displayed effectively by a department of the factory—the window display department, whose business it is to get up unique window displays for its offices situated all over the world and also for stores in general.

The object of the street is to give suggestions in window trimming, window lighting and general arrangement of stores for the store keepers who visit the National Cash Register at Dayton.

ECZEMA IS NOT A BLOOD DISEASE

Never Proves Fatal—Should Be Treated Externally With Psolam.

Eczeema is not a blood disease—on this point medical authorities agree. It never proves fatal, and is generally found in those who are otherwise healthy. Being a surface skin trouble, it can only be treated by external means. Psolam has probably accomplished more remarkable cures of this and other skin diseases than any remedy known. It is applied directly upon the disorder, stops itching at once and clears and heals the skin. After suffering with eczeema for fourteen years my hands and feet were in such condition I could hardly use them," writes Mrs. Esther Clark, Roxbury, Mass. "After being treated by several doctors and spending a small fortune I thought I could try Psolam. I find myself perfectly well. I am so grateful that I cannot praise it enough."

Merely a small quantity of psolam used for clearing the complexion, removing pimples, eruptions, rashes and blemishes, is sufficient to show what it can do. For this purpose free samples are mailed to anyone upon request to the Emergency Laboratories, 33 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City. All druggists, particularly SCHRAMM-JOHNSON, DRUGS, FIVE STORES, sell both the 50-cent trial packages and the regular $2 jars.

WOMEN CAB DRIVERS IN PARIS ARE SUCCESSFUL

Special Cable to The Tribune.
PARIS, Dec. 10.—The employment of women as cab drivers has proven a success, and the officers of the League for the Protection of Horses have found that the women treat their horses much better than do men. It is rarely that the women drivers use the whip, and the inspectors of the league say that they have often found women caring for their horses while waiting for a fare and offering them lumps of sugar.

New Archdiocese Announced.

Special Cable to The Tribune.
ROME, Dec. 10.—The pope has announced the foundation of a new archdiocese—that of Simla, in Hindostan—and the creation of a new vicariate of Kilima-Njaro in eastern Africa—this last name which came into history but a few years ago. The erection of a new diocese is recorded in Rio Negro, Brazil. Thus, the pope says, he finds consolation in the progress the church is making in her countries, where liberty of worship is better understood than in this country.
